As this report on Greater Boston Legal Service’s 2019 accomplishments comes to you, we are already living in a markedly different era. The past several months have brought forth so many unexpected new challenges for our clients and our communities that 2019 seems oddly quaint in retrospect. But Greater Boston Legal Services did wonderful things last year. Our advocates helped thousands of people achieve safety, freedom, stability, and security, through seemingly small actions like brief representation in a Lawyer for the Day clinic, to more broadly impactful work like legislative and policy advocacy.

Now, as we find ourselves in the midst of new challenges and renewed struggles, I am buoyed in many ways by these reflections on our 2019 accomplishments – the clients we helped, the partnerships we formed and fed, the resources we leveraged, our supporters who were with us every step of the way – and how they are allowing us to do our best work in 2020.

I hope that as you read through our reflections on 2019, that you will feel similarly hopeful. GBLS has been here for a long time – 120 years to be exact. We have weathered pandemics, recessions, and political shifts. Through it all, our advocates have been here for our clients, fighting for people’s rights and dignity, working to change unjust systems and lift marginalized voices. We did great things in 2019, and we continue our fight for justice for all.

Jacquelynne J. Bowman
Executive Director
GBLS is one of few legal aid organizations in the state with the experience and ability to lobby for needed changes in the policies and laws that affect our clients and community.

Collaborative relationships with community partners, legislators, government agency representatives, organizers, and others allow us to leverage GBLS’ legal expertise to make the biggest possible impact.

GBLS’ Impact in 2019

2019 heralded numerous victories in GBLS’ systemic and legislative advocacy work. GBLS’ attorneys and advocates are poverty law experts whose depth of knowledge make them powerful agents for change. In 2019, GBLS’ impact advocacy included:

- GBLS and the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute lead the Campaign to Lift the Cap on Kids, a statewide effort by a coalition of 125 organizations that succeeded in repealing the welfare family cap. Enacted in 1995, the family cap rule denied cash benefits to approximately 8,700 children conceived after their families received benefits. The Lift the Cap on Kids campaign persuaded the legislature to include repeal of the cap in the FY19 budget but the governor vetoed it. The legislature repealed the cap in a nearly unanimous vote in March 2019 and went on to override another veto by the governor. There is no longer a family cap in Massachusetts, protecting the wellbeing of children statewide.

- GBLS’ Medicare Advocacy Project (MAP) helped draft and advocated for the passage of H.1199/S.699, An Act regarding Medicare Savings Programs Eligibility that had been long promoted by the Massachusetts Senior Action Council. The bill expanded the financial eligibility criteria for the Programs thereby increasing the number of low- and middle-income elders who are eligible for health care savings, and was signed into law in September 2019.

- GBLS helped craft language to replace Somerville’s existing wage theft law. The ordinance gave city agencies the power to deny abusive employers building permits, licenses and contracts.

- GBLS successfully advocated for a one-year extension of the City of Boston’s condo conversion legislation that includes protections for tenants, e.g., the owner may evict tenant only for “just cause.”

- GBLS and members of our nursing home advocacy coalition raised issues with nursing home safety with the Attorney General’s Office, such as residents being harmed and even dying as a result of poor care. This advocacy led the AG to take action and in March 2019, the AG announced major settlements with seven nursing homes for violating residents’ rights. The settlements include the cited facilities having to undergo compliance monitoring for three years and face additional fines if they fail to comply with the settlement requirements, barring some of the nursing home owners from operating in Massachusetts.

- GBLS’ Impact in 2019; 2019 heralded numerous victories in GBLS’ systemic and legislative advocacy work. GBLS’ attorneys and advocates are poverty law experts whose depth of knowledge make them powerful agents for change. In 2019, GBLS’ impact advocacy included: and also calls for an advisory committee that would include representatives of a number of city-based advocacy organizations. The Somerville City Council passed the ordinance on December 12, 2019, and it went into effect on June 1, 2020.

GBLS worked on systemic reforms focused on the needs of aging residents in group homes funded by the Department of Mental Health and Department of Developmental Services. GBLS sought to ensure that these seniors with significant psychiatric and intellectual disabilities can safely “age in place” and avoid preventable nursing home admissions. Advocacy efforts with the Elder Executive Office of Health and Human Services Secretary and her designees resulted in state agency reforms.

GBLS conducted a multi-faceted campaign to ensure that low-income families have access to adult care through the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care (EEC). Among other improvements resulting from GBLS’ work, EEC initiated a process to bring their fees in line with federal guidelines to make them more affordable for low-income families.

GBLS’ School to Prison Pipeline Intervention Project teamed up with the Boston Bar Association in a first-of-its-kind public outreach program, with the goal of raising community awareness about students’ rights relating to school discipline. Supported by the Boston Bar Foundation’s Burns Innovation in Service Fund, the program consisted of 2018-2019 Public Interest Leadership Program class participants giving presentations to community groups, students, parents, and members of the public on students’ new due process rights, following GBLS’ 2018 class action settlement agreement with Boston Public Schools.

GBLS and coalitions that protect workers advocated for passage of a GBLS-drafted bill to protect the right to unemployment insurance for vulnerable workers who work volatile, fluctuating work hours. The Senate passed the bill unanimously in the 2018 session, it was refiled in 2019, and the bill is now pending in the Senate and House Committees on Ways and Means.

The Massachusetts Department of Unemployment Assistance (DUA) Unemployment Insurance (UI) Online program poses significant barriers to low-wage workers, especially those without English fluency or who lack computer access or proficiency. DUA agreed on the need to overhaul the online system. In 2019, GBLS drafted, testified in support of, and secured an amendment to bond bill H.4708, an Act financing the general governmental infrastructure of the Commonwealth, to create an Advisory Council that includes a diverse constituency to oversee the UI Online overhaul. GBLS continues to work, along with Associated Industries of Massachusetts, to advance the bill to the Governor’s desk.

Direct Services

In 2019, GBLS provided urgently-needed civil legal assistance to thousands of families and individuals. Through over 10,000 cases handled for clients last year, GBLS’ attorneys and paralegals used their poverty law expertise, decades of experience, and ingenuity to right wrongs and prevent injustices in our community and throughout the Commonwealth.

GBLS direct services to clients range from issues of economic justice, including protecting the rights of low-wage workers, employment discrimination, subsistence benefits, CORI sealing and expungement, the Low-Income Taxpayer Clinic, unfair debt collection and predatory lending practices, and preventing financial abuse; to household stability through the preservation of affordable housing, keeping families in their homes, obtaining emergency shelter for families, and protecting tenants’ rights; from preserving safety through domestic violence-related family law, elder abuse prevention, and giving survivors of persecution and violence, including unaccompanied children, a viable avenue to legal rights and responsibilities afforded to them by law and ensuring that they have the resources they need to meet their basic needs. By serving thousands of clients each year, GBLS helps mothers care for their children, keeps elders in safe and stable housing, and enables people to go to work and provide for their families. And our direct service work allows us to create broader change – laying the foundation for impact work that allows us help even more people in our community and beyond.

Through GBLS’ direct service work, our advocates educate and empower our clients.

CARMEN

“Carmen” is from Honduras and does not speak English. She could not understand why Social Security Administration was refusing her six-year-old daughter “Maria” Supplemental Security Income (SSI), since Maria was clearly disabled. Maria was born with a condition called cloacal malformation, and had extreme difficulties with several personal care activities, including toileting. Despite having to use a catheter and requiring a nurse on-hand at school to support her many needs, this child was twice denied SSI benefits. Carmen sought help from GBLS’ Children’s Disability Project. A bilingual GBLS attorney was able to engage deeply with this young client and her mother, gathering robust evidentiary support to present a compelling case – ultimately resulting in a victory for the family. Due to GBLS’ advocacy, the denial of Maria’s SSI benefits was overturned, and Maria and her family were able to get the support they needed.

JUDY

“Judy” is the named plaintiff in one of GBLS’ lawsuits against the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care (EEC). EEC had denied continued child care when Judy became unable to work due to disability. Despite two physical conditions that cause pain and mobility limitations, Judy had long worked full time, thanks to child care benefits. However, after returning to work after a maternity leave for her third child, she became debilitated by postpartum depression and anxiety. Despite Judy’s doctor’s detailed opinion about her condition and its impact on the children, EEC terminated child care benefits, baselessly concluding Judy was not eligible under the disabled parent category. Due to GBLS’ representation, EEC reinstated child care benefits for Judy’s older children and she was able to focus on her infant and improving her health.

SPOTLIGHT STORY

When Chanice* first came to GBLS, she was living in a shelter with her 4-year-old and 1-month-old sons. Only a few months before, she had been working full-time with help from a childcare subsidy from the Department of Early Education and Childcare (EEC). Families must meet a series of stringent requirements to qualify for a subsidy, and many who qualify spend months or even years on a waiting list for a subsidized spot at a licensed daycare.

The Boston area has among the highest housing and childcare costs in the nation and, even with the subsidy, Chanice struggled to pay rent and keep up with her required contribution to childcare. To make ends meet, Chanice took a second job, which triggered an increase to her required childcare contribution. Chanice could not afford to pay more, and she was forced to give up her subsidy. Determined to make the situation work, Chanice turned to a patchwork arrangement of family and friends to care for her son.

A few months later, Chanice got sick and was unable to work. Though she was out of work for just a short time, the burden of high rent and childcare had made it impossible for Chanice to save for an emergency. Without a regular paycheck, she found it more and more difficult to make ends meet until, finally, Chanice lost her apartment and was forced to move into a homeless shelter with her sons.

Luckily, at the shelter Chanice met a GBLS attorney who helped her obtain a new childcare subsidy and eventually move out of the shelter. Chanice also became the lead plaintiff in a 2019 GBLS lawsuit challenging EEC’s fee scale and practice of sanctioning families who miss payments, who can lose a voucher by missing as little as two weeks. GBLS also filed a lawsuit challenging the impossibly high standard the agency has set for parents with disabilities to qualify for subsidies. More recently, GBLS and WilmerHale have been working together to address the challenges faced by clients who appeal subsidy denials — an issue of vital importance that GBLS did not have the capacity to take on alone.

Chanice recently moved into permanent housing, and she is enrolled in community college. Her sons have subsidized spots in a childcare center. The EEC’s rules made Chanice feel like her inability to pay the fees was a personal failing and that there was no way to get ahead, but she now realizes the complicated, rigid system makes it incredibly difficult for low-income families to access childcare and meet other basic needs. She hopes that by sharing her story, she can help change that system for all families. GBLS is grateful for WilmerHale's commitment to ensuring access to subsidized quality childcare in a fairer, more transparent process for Massachusetts families like Chanice’s.

IN MEMORIAM
We are saddened to note the loss of three special members of our GBLS community in 2019.

W. LINCOLN (“LINC”) BOYDEN
Linc was a former member of the GBLS Corporation. Linc served as a volunteer attorney with CASLS after retiring from a long legal career at Ropes & Gray.

HOWARD MDEDW
Howard was a long-time member of the GBLS Board of Directors and of the GBLS Corporation. A partner at Burns & Levinson, Howard was a dedicated advocate for GBLS in the legal community and a mentor for new Board members.

JOHN “JACK” WARD
Jack was a cherished friend and colleague to staff, clients, Board members, and volunteers at GBLS. Jack retired as GBLS Director of Finance and Development in 2015 after 31 years with the organization. An ordained Roman Catholic priest, Jack’s passion in life was always to be there to help those in need. He began working for GBLS in 1984 at the urging of his friend and then-Executive Director, Peter Anderson. At GBLS, Jack’s role grew along with the organization, and his work contributed greatly to the organization’s success over the years. With his characteristic can-do attitude and strategic thinking, he became a well-respected figure in the civil legal aid field nationally, mentoring and training hundreds of other nonprofit fundraisers and administrators.

Jack and his husband, Joe, remained integral figures of the GBLS family even after Jack’s retirement from the organization. Always committed to serving others, Jack remained involved with GBLS throughout his retirement, serving as a Corporation member and providing advice and counsel to his former colleagues. He will always be remembered fondly for his generosity of spirit, insightful leadership, and genial sense of humor.
